First 3 verses of poem written by Joseph Falcon, of Dearham, poet, collier, baker and clogger, 1776-1832. Joseph died of cholera and his grave is unmarked. Brief history of the church. "The nave of the church is the size and shape of a Norman church and a Norman doorway, circa 1130 A.D. can be seen inside the church. Bishop Nicholson on his Visitation in 1703 gave a detailed account of the state of the building, noting that the chancel wall was in danger of collapsing and that the Font was curiously figured and carved. He also noted that the new register beginning in 1662 was in Vicarage House, but the older one, said to have been a good age, was in keeping of the clerk, who was abroad at harvest. The Reverend William Slater Calverley was responsible for the enlargement and restoration of the church in 1882. He came to Dearham as curate in 1874, was inducted as vicar in 1877 and moved to Aspatria in 1885. He	2005

"The grade II listed Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady and St Wilfrid (originally called St Mary's) was completed in 1841 at a cost of £2,586 following its commission by Henry Howard of Corby Castle. It was designed by Augustus Welby Northmore Pugin, this being his only church in Cumbria and the oldest known surviving designed by him. The church is built of red sandstone with a slate roof and coped gables. There is a hexagonal bellcote above the west gable. The side stained glass windows are by John Hardman and were completed 1860-1867. A transcript made in 2001, noted that the churchyard had been cleared of all pre-20th century gravestones except for one, located to the west-south-west of the church."	undated [circa 20th century]

It was demolished when the present church was built on a more convenient site in 1891, and now only grass covered footing survive. Prior to 1788, many people in the parish attended services in Brampton, over the border in Scotland or in Falstone,	1995

Northumberland. It also appears that Presbyterian ministers came to Bewcastle to hold services in various houses, The Row being specifically mentioned. Support grew for a meeting house and it was built on a hill, part of Jack's Croft, whose owner was Thomas Dixon, gardener at Netherby Hall. This building was completed by the second day of April 1788. it was renovated in 1854 and reopened on 12 November 1854. The present Knowe church was built a
